SUPERIOR COURT OF WASHINGTON FOR KING COUNTY

RAMIRO VALDERRAMA,

Plaintiff,

vs.

CITY OF SAMMAMISH,

Defendant

Case No.: 23-2-04283-2

ORDER DENYING PLAINTIFF’S MOTION FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT AND GRANTING DEFENDANT’S
MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

In January 2022, Ramiro Valderrama submitted public records requests for the City of Sammamish to produce all external communications between its current and former councilmembers and any citizen since 2018. In March 2023, he sued the City, alleging that the City failed to adequately respond and did not promptly handle his requests. He filed for partial summary judgment as to liability and the City moved for summary judgment to dismiss the case. Valderrama argues in part that the City should have to file suit against former councilmembers to compel them to produce their personal devices and applications for forensic search to determine whether they contain public records.

Having been fully advised and reviewed the pleadings, declarations, and exhibits in this matter, the undisputed facts show that the City conducted an adequate search that was reasonably calculated to obtain responsive documents, including those that might be in the possession of third parties or former employees. The City also acted promptly considering the context of the request and the subsequent clarifications provided by Valderrama. The PRA does not obligate an agency to sue a former employer in order to determine whether they possess public records. The

1 Court denies Valderrama’s motion for partial summary judgment and grants the City’s motion 2 for summary judgment. The Court dismisses the complaint.

3 I. BACKGROUND

4 The following undisputed facts have been established for purposes of analyzing the cross-5 motions for summary judgment:

6 1. Ramiro Valderrama is a former councilmember and deputy mayor of the City of 7 Sammamish, serving from January 2012 to January 2020. On January 6, 2022, Valderrama 8 submitted a public records request to the City to produce all communications from all Council 9 Members since 2019 with Miki Mullor or Michael Scoles on “external channels” like 10 “WhatsApp, Signal, Slack, Telegram, etc.” The City identified this request as PRR 4241.

11 2. On January 8, 2022, Valderrama submitted another request that asked for all 12 communications including telephone call logs from all Council Members since 2019 with Miki 13 Mullor, Mullor’s wife, and Michael Scoles using external channels for communications 14 including but not limited to WhatsApp, Signal Slack, Telegram, etc. and for any correspondence 15 with the wife of Miki Mullor. The City identified this request as PRR 4244. Based on 16 communications with Valderrama, the City ultimately closed PRR 4241 and kept open PRR 17 4244. At oral argument, Valderrama conceded that there were no outstanding issues with City’s 18 responses to PRR 4241 and PRR 4244.

19 3. On January 28, 2022, Valderrama submitted another request that asked for all 20 communications and copies of phone call logs that all Council Members made to citizens since 21 2019 on external channels. The next day, Valderrama amended the request to read:

22
23 Council Members have been using external channels for communication with 24 citizens/residents including but not limited to: WhatsApp, Signal, Telegram, etc. I 25 would like to receive copies of all communications and copies of telephone call 26 logs/lists of calls made to citizens from all Council Members since 2018 with any resident using any of these or similar channels inc. WeChat etc. channels.

27 The City identified the request as PRR 4280.

1 4. The City provided a 5-day response letter for PRR 4280, and estimated that it 2 would provide its first installment of records by February 28, 2022. The City also asked its 3 councilmembers to search for responsive records and to complete Nissen Affidavits.

4 5. The City produced some responsive records and Nissen Affidavits, but there was 5 likewise confusion as to what communications would be responsive to the request. On June 24, 6 2022, Valderrama provided additional definition of the request:

8 The encrypted devices would be special phones calling – the encrypted messaging 9 and phone channels would include: calls and messages on: WhatsApp, Signal, 10 Slack, Telegram, WeChat, Line, Messenger (Facebook), etc. or similar – not the 11 daily city or personal emails. Also not asking for Council personal phone line SMS 12 messages.

13 If, however, they are using someone else’s phone (friend, child spouse, significant 14 other) or device to make the calls on their behalf that would be “hiding” their use 15 that would be akin to cloaking, encrypting and would want those.
16 Hope that helps.

17 6. It is undisputed that the City searched for and produced all responsive records that 18 the City had direct access to and control over. The City provided rolling productions for 19 responsive records.

20 7. It is undisputed that the City, through two Public Records Officers (PROs) and 21 several attorneys, engaged in efforts to locate and produce documents that were on personal 22 devices or applications used by current and former councilmembers. At oral argument, 23 Valderrama’s attorney agreed that there was no dispute regarding the itemized descriptions of 24 efforts undertaken by the PROs and attorneys on behalf of the City to work with current and 25 former councilmembers to search their devices and provide signed Nissen declarations. The 26 declarations and exhibits show extensive work by the PROs and attorneys to seek clarifications 27 from Valderrama, to work with current and former councilmembers to use different methods of 28 searching for responsive documents, and to provide either responsive records or Nissen 29 declarations explaining the search conducted by the current and former councilmembers.

1 8. As of the date of the hearing on this motion, the City had received many Nissen 2 declarations from current and former councilmembers regarding all three public records requests.
3 The current and former councilmembers also provided responsive records to the City, which the 4 City in turn produced to Valderrama during its productions.

5 9. As of today, PRR 4280 remains open. The City indicated that the next production 6 would occur in January. It is not disputed that the only outstanding productions are potentially 7 records on personal devices or applications of former councilmembers.

8 10. Valderrama filed this suit in March 2023. He alleged that the City violated the 9 Public Records Act by failing to conduct an adequate search and by failing to promptly respond 10 to the requests. The parties conducted discovery, including depositions of current and former 11 councilmembers. The City moved for summary judgment to dismiss the claims and Valderrama 12 moved for partial summary judgment to establish violations of the PRA.

III. DISCUSSION

A. The Public Records Act (Chapter 42.56 RCW)

12. “The PRA is a strongly worded mandate for broad disclosure of public records.” Banbridge Island Police Guild v. City of Puyallup, 172 Wn.2d 398, 408, 259 P.3d 190 (2011) (plurality opinion) (cleaned up). Under the general public records disclosure mandate, public agencies, which includes municipalities, are required to produce all public records upon request unless an exemption applies. RCW 42.56.070(1). A public record consists of three elements: (1) any writing (2) containing information relating to the conduct of government or the performance of any governmental or proprietary function (3) prepared, owned, used, or retained by any state or local agency. RCW 42.56.010(3); West v. Puyallup, 2 Wn. App. 2d 586, 592, 410 P.3d 1197 (2018).

13. After receiving a request for public records, an agency must respond within five business days by (1) providing the records; (2) providing an internet address and link on the agency’s web site to the specific records requested; (3) acknowledging that the agency has

1 received the request and provide a reasonable estimate of time that the agency will need to 2 respond; or (4) deny the public record request, along with a proper claim of exemption. Belenski
3 v. Jefferson Cty., 186 Wn.2d 452, 456-57, 378 P.3d 176 (2016); RCW 42.56.520(1); RCW 4 42.56.210(3).

5 14. There are two viable causes of action under the PRA for violations, which are the 6 two claims Valderrama brought here. A requestor may bring an action for an agency’s denial of 7 an opportunity to inspect or copy a public record and a challenge of an agency’s unreasonable 8 estimate of time to respond to the PRA request. RCW 42.56.550(1), (2). The burden is on the 9 agency to demonstrate that it has conducted a reasonable search. Cantu v. Yakima Sch. Dist. No.
10 7, 23 Wn. App. 2d 57, 84, 514 P.3d 661, 767 (2022). But once “an agency makes a prima facie 11 showing that it has conducted an adequate search, the requester must rebut that showing.”
12 Neighborhood Alliance of Spokane Cty. v. Spokane Cty., 172 Wn.2d 702, 741, 261 P.3d 119 13 (2011) (Madsen, J. concurring).

14 15. “Under this approach, the focus of the inquiry is not whether responsive 15 documents do in fact exist, but whether the search itself was adequate.” Id. at 719-20 (cleaned 16 up). The adequacy of a search is determined by whether the search is reasonably calculated to 17 uncover all relevant documents. Id. at 720. Agencies are required to make more than a 18 perfunctory search and to follow obvious leads as they are uncovered. Id. The search should not 19 be limited to one or more places if there are additional sources for the information requested, but 20 an agency need not search every possible place a record may conceivably be stored, only those 21 places where it is reasonably likely to be found.

22 16. When there is evidence that an employee of an agency has public records on their 23 personal devices, employees are responsible for searching their files, devices, and accounts for 24 records responsive to a relevant PRA request. Nissen v. Pierce Cty., 183 Wn.2d 863, 886, 357
25 P.3d 45 (2015). If an employee claims that information in a personal account is not a public 26 record, they must submit an affidavit or declaration stating facts in good faith sufficient to 27

1 support that claim. Id. In explaining this analysis, the Supreme Court in Nissen explained that 2 such records were subject to disclosure because an act performed by an agency employee within 3 the scope of his or her employment is tantamount to an act by the agency. Id. at 876; see also 4 West, 2 Wn. App. 2d at 596. The Nissen Court also stated that records an agency employee 5 prepares in their official capacity can be public records, and the Court equated “official capacity” 6 and “scope of employment” when referring to an elected official. Nissen, 183 Wn.2d at 882.

8 17. But personal communications that are work-related are not automatically subject 9 to the PRA. Id. at 878. Only records that an employee prepares, owns, uses, or retains within the 10 scope of employment qualify as public records. Id. For example, an employee is not acting 11 within their scope of employment when they “discuss their job on social media.” Id. at 879. An 12 employee’s communication is within the scope of employment only when the job requires it, the 13 employer directs it, or it furthers the employer’s interests. Id. at 878. The PRA applies only to 14 “records related to the employee’s public responsibilities,” which is a case and record specific 15 analysis. Id. at 878.

16 18. Valderrama points to record retention statutes, Title 40 RCW. Although those 17 statutes include penal provisions for injury to or misappropriation of a public record, the 18 retention laws do not create an independent cause of action for an individual seeking public 19 records, as Valderrama conceded at oral argument. See RCW 40.16.020. A violation of the 20 record retention laws is not a violation of the PRA. To be sure, the destruction of public records 21 is at least as harmful (if not more harmful) than an agency’s failure to adequately search for and 22 produce public records, which is likely why there are penal provisions. And while the PRA 23 prohibits agencies from destroying public records scheduled for destruction if there is an active 24 request, there is no allegation that occurred here. See RCW 42.56.100.

25 B. Standard of Review

26 19. The parties bring cross-motions for summary judgment, so the Court applies the 27 familiar standards of CR 56. The Court must determine whether, viewing the facts in the light 28

1 most favorable to the nonmoving party, there is a dispute of material facts such that the moving 2 party is entitled to a judgment as a matter of law. CR 56(b). There is no material dispute about 3 the facts. As such, this matter may be resolved fully on the affidavits presented by the parties.
4 O’Neill v. City of Shoreline, 170 Wn.2d 138, 152-53, 240 P.3d 1149 (2010).

5 C. The City’s Motions to Strike

6 20. The City submits three motions to strike exhibits and parts of declarations that 7 Valderrama submitted. The Court denies the motions to strike, but acknowledges, as explained 8 below, that Valderrama’s claims rely on speculation and/or hearsay. Because the evidence might 9 be admissible for another purpose, i.e., not for the truth of the matter, the Court will address 10 those issues in the lens of a motion for summary judgment rather than through the motions to 11 strike.

13 D. The Claims Now at Issue

14 21. Through the briefing of the parties and the oral argument, Valderrama has focused 15 his claim to the responses provided by three individuals: former Councilmember and Mayor 16 Malchow, former Councilmember Gamblin, and current Councilmember Treen. There appear to 17 be no other outstanding issues regarding other Councilmembers before the Court. The Court will 18 focus its analysis on those responses. Although there is brief mention about the claim that the 19 City failed to act promptly, much of the argument folds the “promptness” analysis into the 20 analysis about whether the City conducted an adequate search.

21 E. The Motions Are Not Premature

22 22. The City argues that the claims should be dismissed as premature because the 23 public records request is still open. See Hobbs v. State, 183 Wn. App. 925, 935-936, 335 P.3d 24 1004 (2014). The City is correct that agencies need the opportunity to conduct a search, respond, 25 and close the request before bringing suit. But as confirmed during oral argument, the only 26 outstanding issue at this time that keeps the request open is the potential that former 27 councilmembers have responsive documents. The parties’ arguments hinge either on analyzing 28

1 the obligations of the City with respect to former councilmembers, which would provide 2 guidance as to the request at issue, or addressing responses by former councilmembers that are 3 not delaying the closure of the request.

4 F. The Adequacy of the City’s Search Depends on the Clarity of the Request

5 23. The City argues that PRR 4280 is vague. On its face, PRR 4280 is at least 6 overbroad in that it seeks both public records and personal communications between 7 councilmembers and any member of the public. The undisputed facts show that the City 8 understood that the request sought only public records, but erred on the side of producing records 9 that would not be considered public records. Given the breadth of the request, the City needed 10 several opportunities to seek clarification to understand the nature of the request. Valderrama 11 provided additional clarification. These additional clarifications caused the City to close and then 12 reopen PRR 4280, to contact and provide amended Nissen declarations, to inquire of other 13 councilmembers, and to conduct further searches of current and former councilmembers.¹

14 24. Valderrama’s request is not impermissibly vague, but the lack of clarity in the 15 request has to be considered when evaluating whether the City conducted an adequate search or 16 was prompt in fully responding to the request.

17 G. Searching Former Employees’ Personal Devices or Applications for Public Records

18 25. Turning to the merits of the claims, with respect to Malchow and Gamblin’s 19 responses, Valderrama’s argument is essentially that the PRA obligates the City to affirmatively 20 file suit against any former employee who might have responsive public records on their own 21 personal devices or applications to forensically search their devices and applications. As 22 explained below, the Court concludes that the PRA does not provide for such an obligation on an 23
25
26

27 ¹Contrary to Valderrama’s argument, the City only briefly closed PRR 4280 once, on October 31, 28 2022. The City reopened the request a few days later upon Valderrama’s request. In February 2023, the City closed another PRR but accidentally used the email string referring to PRR 4280, but even Valderrama’s contemporaneous email responses make clear he understood the mistake and that PRR 4280 remained open.

1 agency. For purposes of analyzing whether the City reasonably searched for records involving 2 Malchow and Gamblin, it is necessary to further address the City's obligations under the PRA.

3 26. Valderrama grounds his argument in Nissen to say that if a Nissen declaration is 4 made in bad faith, then the City must file suit to recover public records, including those in 5 possession of former employees. Valderrama also relies on Kitsap County v. Smith, 143 Wn.
6 App. 893, 180 P.3d 834 (2008). But neither Nissen nor Smith go so far as to impose an obligation 7 on an agency to bring suit to recover public records in the possession of former employees. In 8 fact, as West points out, the Nissen Court focused on the employer/employee and agency 9 relationship when holding that current employees have to search for public records on their 10 personal devices when appropriate. Because of the employer/employee relationship, the agency 11 has tools (i.e. disciplinary measure) to compel the employee's compliance with the PRA. But 12 once that employer/employee relationship no longer exists, those tools no longer exist and the 13 fundamental analysis in Nissen no longer applies.

14 27. Similarly, just because an agency may bring suit to recover public records 15 possessed by former employees, as in Smith, that does not mean that the agency must bring such 16 a suit. Smith does not impose such an obligation. The Court thus concludes that the PRA did not 17 require the City to file suit against former employees to attempt to retrieve any potential public 18 records.

19 28. To be sure, the PRA requires the agency to conduct an adequate search. When an 20 agency is aware that former employees may possess public records on their personal devices and 21 applications, it needs to make reasonable efforts to obtain the public records. This analysis 22 examines the conduct of the agency and its response to third parties and does not evaluate 23 whether third parties acted appropriately.

24 H. The Adequacy of Searches

25 29. With that framework in mind, the Court turns to analyze the adequacy of the 26 City's search. The undisputed evidence shows that the City acted reasonably. It sent out a 27

1 response within five business days and provided rolling productions. Although the request itself
2 was less than clear, the City sought clarification from Valderrama to ascertain what public 3 records he was looking for and then forwarded those requests to current and former 4 councilmembers. The record is replete with communications from the City's PROs and attorneys 5 seeking clarification from Valderrama, forwarding such clarification and advice to current and 6 former councilmembers, drafting and obtaining signatures of Nissen declarations from current 7 and former councilmembers detailing their efforts to search for responsive records, and 8 producing the records to Valderrama. The declarations are reasonably detailed and 9 nonconclusory. See Block v. City of Gold Bar, 189 Wn. App. 262, 274-275, 355 P.3d 266 (2015).

11 30. Valderrama makes much of the fact that because there were multiple iterations of 12 Nissen declarations for several of the councilmembers, they must have acted in bad faith. But the 13 undisputed evidence shows that the councilmembers updated their Nissen declarations after 14 obtaining new facts or clarifications and then conducting different searches. Even if the 15 declarations initially lacked sufficient details, the declarants provided additional details to 16 explain the efforts undertaken. The undisputed facts show that they were made in good faith.

17 31. As mentioned, Valderrama focuses his analysis to current Councilmember Treen 18 and former Councilmembers Malchow and Gamblin. The Court will address each in turn:

19 a. Current Councilmember Treen

20 32. The undisputed evidence shows that Councilmember Treen first submitted a 21 Nissen declaration mistakenly stating that he had not checked his personal devices because he 22 did not use them for city business. He later executed a supplemental declaration explaining that 23 he was mistaken and that he did search for the applications at issue on his personal devices for 24 Mullor and Scoles, who were identified by Valderrama. He testified that the searches did not 25 reveal any communications relating to the conduct of City business. Based on this testimony, the 26 City reasonably relied on his sworn statements and conducted an adequate search.

1 33. Valderrama discusses Dr. Scoles' vague testimony about having a Slack channel, 2 but never connects Treen to that channel. Treen further explained that he could not open the 3 Slack application on his phone. See Block, 189 Wn. App. at 275 (adequate search even though 4 the public official's devices lost data and had technological difficulties). The City's search with 5 respect to Councilmember Treen was reasonably calculated to adequately search for responsive 6 records and did not violate the PRA.

7 34. Valderrama argues that Councilmember Treen asked a contractor IT support staff 8 person about how to scrub his phone, demonstrating that he acted in bad faith. But the 9 undisputed testimony is that Treen clarified that he was asking about how to search for 10 documents on his devices for purposes of responding to the request, not to delete documents.

11 b. Former Councilmember Malchow

12 35. Malchow was on City Council when Valderrama submitted his public records 13 request but resigned in June 2022. For the reasons explained above, the analysis of the City's 14 actions are different from when she was on City Council and when she was not. While she was 15 on City Council, the undisputed evidence shows that she conducted a reasonable search. She 16 provided Nissen declarations both during and after her role as a councilmember of searching for 17 responsive public records.

18 36. Valderrama makes much of a transcript of WhatsApp messages and copies of 19 WhatsApp messages from third parties with Malchow to argue that she withheld records. Even 20 assuming that those messages constitute public records, they do not show that Malchow acted in 21 bad faith when signing her Nissen declarations. The only evidence is that Malchow could not 22 access the messages on the WhatsApp platform. See Block, 189 Wn. App. at 275. She searched 23 for what records were available on her devices.

24 37. Valderrama points to communications between Stephanie Rudat and Malchow.
25 First, it is unclear how these communications qualify as public records, particularly where they 26 do not further a business interest for Malchow. But even if they did, there is no testimony that 27

1 Malchow unreasonably withheld the public records. The record shows that she produced what 2 was within her control. Further, most of these records were voluntarily provided by Malchow 3 after she was no longer on City Council, demonstrating that the City was reasonably working 4 with a former employee to spend time searching for records and providing Nissen declarations.

5 c. Former Councilmember Gamblin

6 38. Former Councilmember Gamblin was not on City Council when Valderrama 7 submitted PRR 4280. The City nonetheless spent months attempting to contact and work with 8 Gamblin to search for records and draft and sign Nissen declarations. That there have been 9 delays is not because the City did not act diligently. The undisputed evidence shows the contrary.
10 The City diligently pursued records potentially in Gamblin’s control. Although it took months to 11 obtain a Nissen declaration from Gamblin, that is not the fault of the City, but of Gamblin, who 12 no longer worked for the City. Further, Valderrama did not clarify that he sought public records 13 on former Councilmember Gamblin’s personal devices until September 2022. Once the City was 14 aware of that clarification, it took reasonable steps to reach out to former Councilmember 15 Gamblin to see if it would be possible to search for the public records on his personal device.

16 39. Valderrama argues that Dr. Scoles and Rudat testified about communications 17 Gamblin had with Mullor and others on Slack. But this testimony is hearsay and speculation.
18 There is no evidence in the record showing Gamblin had responsive records of Slack 19 communications on his personal devices. The City has thus far conducted an adequate search of 20 Gamblin and the undisputed evidence demonstrates that there is no PRA violation.

21 IV. ORDER

22 40. The Court has considered the other arguments raised by the parties in their 23 briefing and at oral argument. In light of the Court’s review of the arguments and submitted 24 materials as well as the analysis above, the Court ORDERS the following:

- 25 1. The City’s motions to strike are DENIED; 26 2. Valderrama’s motion for partial summary judgment is DENIED; and
